

Fish Dish Blooper Reel

Music from Zenith City by Woodblind

Hello. I'm Marie Zhuikov, one of the hosts of The Fish Dish podcast. My Wisconsin Sea Grant colleague, Sharon Moen, and I have enjoyed bringing you 17 episodes of The Fish Dish over the past three-and-a-half years -- giving you the latest "dish on fish." But alas, things are changing at The Fish Dish. I'm retiring after 13 years with Wisconsin Sea Grant and 28 years with Sea Grant in total. Sharon will soldier on with a few more episodes thanks to help from two other Sea Grant communications colleagues, Jenna Mertz and Bonnie Willison.

As a parting gift, I wanted to leave you, dear listeners, and Sharon, with this blooper reel. I've been saving the outtakes from a few of our last shows in secret. You might recognize the episodes they relate to, such as "The 100% Great Lakes Fish Initiative," the "Northern Waters Smokehaus Cookbook," and "Growing Atlantic Salmon in Wisconsin."

I'd like to thank all the commercial fishers, aquaculturists, cooks, and fisheries experts from across the state and beyond who have contributed to our podcast and to the Eat Wisconsin Fish website. Remember to check out all the great resources there at eatwisconsinfish.org.

And now, I'll say, "So Long, and Thanks for all the Fish!"

Music from Zenith City by Woodblind

Clip 1 - Marie: For the fishalicious part of this fish dish . . . (makes throat sound) Say that five times fast!

Clip 2 - Sharon: Taste and price typically refec.. (Laughter)

Marie: Say that five times fast!

Clip 3 - Marie: The 100 percent Great Lakes Fish Iniv..., 100 percent Great Lakes Fish Initia..., 100 percent Great Lakes Fish Initiative...

Clip 4 - Sharon: How does Superior Fresh raise salmon using relatively little water? The answer is their recircly ... (Laughter)

Clip 5 - Sharon: So, there's four core components to traditional showder. There's four core components to traditional sh... (Laughter)

Russ: How do you say it again?

Sharon: Chowder.

Clip 6 - Sharon: Soon the livers arrived.

Marie: Or could you say, soon the livers arrived? Something like that.

Sharon: She was giving a tour of NADF and was running late. Soon, the river's a lot. Soon, the liver's arrived.

Music from Zenith City by Woodblind